CLIFF KELLEY TALKS ON CLIFF KELLEY and the April 2nd Runoff Results

Greetings!

Cliff Kelley, the former Chicago alderman who forged a distinguished career as a news analyst and radio talk show host, is stepping down as afternoon star of urban news/talk WVON 1690-AM.

March 29 will be Kelley's last day as the self-styled "Governor of Talk Radio" after 25 years at the Midway Broadcasting station. He broke the news to his listeners at the end of Friday's show.

Although he stopped short of calling it a retirement, Kelley, 77, said: "I'm just rewiring. There is plenty more work for me to do." He'll continue at WVON as "community ambassador" and a regular fill-in host.

"Cliff Kelley is one of Chicago's most influential hosts and has been a trusted source of information for Chicago's African-American community for over three decades, forming a host/listener bond that is rarely seen in any market," Todd Ronczkowski, program director of WVON, said in a statement.

In recognition of Cliff's status in and importance to the community, in hopes of better understanding more about the man behind the mike and his future plans, and to gain insights on the results of the April 2nd Runoff Election, COAL is honored to host Cliff Kelley one of our political thought leaders and revered Voice of the People, as our guest speaker at its April Coalition Power Breakfast

Please join COAL as it recognizes and honors a community institution and gains a honest and valued political perspective on the next Chicago mayoral administration. We look forward to a very timely, engaging and informative Breakfast.
